There is a story about Lexington's Narcotic Farm on Tonic, the arts and music magazine of WUKY. Tonic's Kopana interviews filmmaker and author JP Olsen about his experiences working on the documentary "The Narcotic Farm."

Olsen discusses some interesting issues about the intersections between incarceration, addiction and addiction treatments, medicalization, and criminalization.

This story is a nice complement to Eugene's previous post here about the Narcotic Farm, and the book that accompanies the documentary, co-authored by Olsen and Nancy Campbell.
